Why Buffett will keep his billion

Warren Buffett is offering a billion dollars to anyone who can find a mistake in his 100,000-page annual report. He will only pay out $1 million if the mistake isn’t a material one. His goal: to keep Buffett cash on hand — and the only way to do that is to keep mistakes out. A Las Vegas Sands management professor in Buffett’s home state of Nebraska has a better idea.

Gary Washburn

Success story growing

Harvard making a connection

Harvard was one of the first schools to offer an MBA program, but the school never entirely abandoned the teaching of the classics. The Harvard Business School is still known for its rigorous curriculum and commitment to scholarship.

Great length

Bruins win their ninth in a row as Smith breaks out and Igland stays hot

By Randy Greenberg

Bruins head coach Claude Julien has said that winning is the most important thing to him. He has shown that he is willing to make changes to keep his team on track for success.

Igland scored his first goal of the season, and Smith continued his impressive play on the ice. The team's performance in the past few games has been strong, and they are looking to continue their winning streak.

Benoit Valcin

Patriots still have some holes to fill

The Patriots were unable to completely fill the holes in their roster after the draft. They did not select any offensive linemen or wide receivers, which are areas that need improvement.

A uniform occurrence: Celtics lose fifth straight

Boston was at a disadvantage against the New Orleans Pelicans, who were coming off a win. The Celtics were able to keep the game close in the first half, but the Pelicans pulled away in the second half, eventually winning by 19 points.

INSIDE

Candidate Sizemore in the mix

Red Sox right fielder Brandon Sizemore is currently in the mix for the AL East division title. He has been hitting consistently and has been a key contributor to the team's success.

Marcus Stroman, American league Cy Young award candidate, is looking to solidify his place in the league's top...